REGISTRATION AT SCHOOL IS STILL GROWING

Enrollment in the public school for this year is far in excess of that during any period of last year. While complete figures are not at hand, Walter Anderson, the superintendent, states that during the preceding year the high registration was 575, while for this year it has already passed the 650 mark. The pinnacle has not by any means been reached, and it is freely predicted that within the next few weeks over 700 pupils will be enrolled.

The situation is being happily met, although it may become necessary in due time to employ another teacher to take care of the overflow in certain grades. The registration is an accurate barometer of conditions in Tonopah and shows that the town is enjoying much prosperity in a business way.

INDIANS CATCHING SUPPLY OF FISH

(By Associated Press)
THE DALLES, Ore., Oct. 6.—Topees and shacks dot the banks of the Columbia river at Celilo Falls, near here, for the native Indians are engaged in catching their winter supply of fish. The Indians fish as their ancestors did, with spears and dragnets, and occasionally a native strips and wades out into the river to obtain a better catch. Throngs of whites gather at the river daily to watch the natives at their work. Many of the fish are sold at the canneries, but most of them are dried on racks on the river banks for use as winter food.

ADDRESSING LETTERS.

The true, strong and sound mind is the mind that can embrace equally great things and small.—Johnson.

NEVER use the form "Dear Friend." This was once in good form but it is decidedly out of favor now.

Never address a letter intended for various members of the same family thus: "Mrs. John Smith and family." Instead use this form: "Mrs. John Smith; The Misses Smith."

A simpler way is to address the envelope of the letter to the head of the family and explain within that your letter is intended for the whole family.

Never enclose a postage stamp in anything but a business communication when you ask for a reply. This is not necessary if you are transacting business in which your request is not in the nature of a favor.

Never even in a business letter use the expression, "Let me know by return mail," or "Send by return mail."

As a matter of fact mails are so frequent between big cities now that it would probably be quite impossible to return by the next outgoing mail and obviously there is no return mail to save in some place like Bonanza where a boat bringing mail actually carries off the next outgoing mail. And yet there is a certain abruptness about the expression that makes it impossible even for business which should always be courteous even though to the point. "At your earliest convenience" is a better expression. But will use any of those stereotyped expressions that are seldom used anywhere but in letters? The man now who writes the best business letters writes as he would talk and says in plain English as you can see "as soon as possible" or something of that sort.

Don't use the ending "Very truly yours." It is anything but a business letter. It is no longer the right ending for social purposes or letters between business friends.

Don't use the ending "Respectfully yours." In ordinary business correspondence. It is the correct ending in an official or business letter addressed to the President. It might properly be used in addressing the vice-president or Justice of the Supreme Court, but to use it simply because you are writing to someone whom you wish to do business with has an air of too great obsequiousness.

High Cost of Rats.

The fire prevention committee of the Building Managers and Owners' association of New York has issued the following bulletin to its members: "The upkeep of rats has gone up. A year or so ago someone figured out that it cost us $150 per person per year to feed the rats in the United States. Recent figures compiled by a British expert place this cost in the United States at $7,000,000 a year, which is a rise over $7 per person. This is simply for food consumed and destroyed and has nothing whatever to do with the very considerable fire loss they cause."

AUTUMN HATS PROMISE RICH WINTER MILLINERY

NEARLY all the hats presented at the early showings of autumn millinery can cheerfully under take to see their wearers through the winter. They are handsome hats of fabrics that have a warm look, and many of the colors in these fabrics are glowing. Velvet, plush or panne, a heavy satin that suggests butter's plush, duvetyne and all its numerous kindred, make lovely mediums for autumn colors—the purple, fuchsia, cerise, red-browns and pleasant tones, bright red and strong, clear blues—even the new dark grays refuse to be cold and could not well be in the fashionable fabrics.

One may gather at a glance over any of the displays of new hats, that they are draped affairs and that they are soft as to lines. Also, both in their making and trimming, they bear witness to the handwork of professional hat makers in their art.

Hats appropriate the decorative features of gowns—and go farther. To embroideries, beads, braids and ribbons, they add many millinery ornaments, and among these are new arrivals made of metal—that it is hard to call by name. Bead edges, and other edges find themselves finished with small metallic shavings laid over them, and numerous changes are used in the same postures. "Snail heads" are used, and have been elaborated. The hat at the top of the group has metallic ornaments set about the up-turned brim edge, making an attractive finish for the duvetyne drapery. At the left of it a felt hat with satin drapery approves lacquered fruits and demonstrates the beauty of two small apples that hang on the brim. Yet it is responsible for the richness of the spirited shape at the right, with flower motifs applied in chenille about the brim edge.

One of the new large-crowned shapes finishes the group. It has a velvet front on the under-brim, edged with folded ribbon across the front, and is otherwise covered with duvetyne, having a metallic net drawn over it.

SOLDIER OF CIVIL WAR MEMORIALIZED

(By Associated Press)
PETERSBURG, Va., Oct. 6.—Joseph Samuel Longfork, one of the oldest living Confederate soldiers, celebrated his 102d birthday yesterday.

He said the other day with a wink about a mile and a half on foot as this city to be entertained by members of the Daughters of the Confederacy. He took his "boy" at 12, prohibited law. The case has a barber shop before the entertainment to "get fixed up for the party," as he said.

REVOLUTION HERO WILL BE DULY HONORED

(By Associated Press)

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 6.—George Rogers Clark, conqueror of the northwest of Revolutionary days and brother of William Clark, the colleague of Meriwether Lewis in the Lewis and Clark expedition in exploring the far northwest, is to be honored in his native county of Allegheny by a memorial in bronze representing him on horseback as the central figure of a group which soon will be placed in a park here near the entrance to the campus of the University of Virginia. The group, the work of Robert Ingersoll Arden, a New York sculptor, whose previous masterpiece is the McKinley monument in Golden Gate park, San Francisco, was a gift to the University of Virginia by Paul Wendell McIntire, a native of this city, and an alumnus of the university. It commemorates the adventure and achievement of the noted Virginian in exploring and securing the territory between the Mississippi and the Alleghenies known as the northwest.

There are seven figures in the group. Clark on horseback, is in the center and dominates the group. He is pictured with two Indian chiefs whose distrust or enmity is shown in every feature, and especially in their pose, in which their spears are partly turned on the explorer and his Virginia. Clark's party is represented by three figures in typical hunter garb. Two of them hold their rifles in readiness for defense or in threat. The third figure is posed over a barrel of powder. A young squaw, the third Indian figure, holds a baby.

Virginia, which he so gallantly honored, was able to reclaim George Rogers Clark. In his last years the legislature of his native state honored him a second. He was then living in Louisville, Ky., where his grave is now marked by a monument which is an impressive and dignified tribute to his worth and recognition of his services.

Clark received for his service during the Revolution a grant of land in part of which near Louisville he spent his last years.

DECISION SATURDAY

Justice Fiddy will give his decision Saturday morning in the case of the people versus John Turkia, who is charged with violation of the 1920 prohibition law. The case has a barber shop before the entertainment to "get fixed up for the party," as he said.
